Not For Tourists™ Guide to ATLANTA

On Our Radar

Cafe Alsace

This small, local restaurant is inviting and perfect for any special evening. As soon as you open the door you are welcomed by the wonderful aroma of French home cookin'. The restaurants owners, Benedicte Cooper from Alsace and Cecile Mignotte from Burgundy, have created a magical portal in Decatur to a small French Bistro in their homeland. The bottle of wine suggested by our server was excellent and changed in flavor as our meal progressed. The crepe du jour was amazing—filled with lamb, brie, walnuts, and sausage. We also savored every last bite of the chicken cordon bleu. This price is a little steep for my budget, but I'll be back again in no time when my bank account is refilled.

You should do the same.
